Good morning,

I am a reporter with the Daily Caller.

I am reaching regarding an incident with a street preacher named Raymond Staubs on Tuesday. He was reportedly arrested while preaching outside a courthouse. I am hearing that he refused to have his fingerprints taken or provide ID.

Was Mr. Staubs violating city or state ordinances against shouting or causing a disturbance outside a govt building?

Is there a police report that media could view to confirm details of the story?

Lastly, do you have any response to offer to some who have intimated that Staubs' arrest had to do with his biblical statements? Would an individual protesting, for instance, anti-abortion policies in a loud manner outside a courthouse during arraignments have received similar repercussions?

Thank you very much! My deadline is 2pm ET.
